Border Incidents

Draw Attention Of Berlin

BRITISH FLAYED

Nazi Papers Bitter Against Czechs

By Webb Miller

BERLIN, May 25—(UP)—

Germany prepared a sharp, official protest to Prague today against border incidents and the presence of Czech troops in the Sudeten German regions of Czechoslovakia.

The semi-official DNB news agency announced Dr. Ernst Eisenlohr, German minister at Prague, has been instructed to protest sharply against repeated violations of the German frontier by Czech airplanes and cited four instances in the last 24 hours.

The minister also was instructed to point out to the Czech government that there is no possibility of pacification in the Sudeten region as long as Czech troops remain there.

Reliable sources revealed that Eisenlohr went to Munich on Sunday and received instructions from Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop to make the protest.

Shooting Protested

Eisenlohr delivered on Monday an official protest against the shooting of two Sudeten German peasants by Czech border guards at Eger, an incident which caused indignation throughout Germany.

The Czech minister, Dostek Mastny, called at the German foreign office on Monday, where he was given a protest against the border incidents.

The protests were accompanied by a strong newspaper outburst against the incidents and against Great Britain.

The latest border incident was reported by D N B.

It was learned that Germany has made repeated protests. The foreign office said it did not know exactly how many, but there were at least four and perhaps six.

The latest was last night, when Eisenlohr called on Premier Milan Hodza and called attention to certain frontier incidents, which both regretted. Kirota said the Czech government is prepared to do everything possible to avoid a recurrence.

It was asserted that a Czechoslovak military or police plane, armed with a machine gun, flew over the towns of Gross-Schoenau, Hermadort and Klingenthal, and that after circling Klingenthal, flew back to Czechoslovakia.

Wage-Hour Act Faces Bitter Senate Fight

WEATHER PLAYS PRANK ON VAN WERT PEONIES

VAN WERT, May 25—(UP)—The early Spring which tinged Van Wert's famed peony fields with color several days too soon played a prank on the annual peony festival to be held here on June 8.

Although the date for the festival was selected only after careful consideration, it is probable that, with exception of late varieties, most of the peonies will be past their prime by festival day.

PLANE'S BOMBS SINK FREIGHTER

British Ship Goes Down Off Valencia; Loyalist Gains Reported

VALENCIA, May 25—(UP)—A British freighter was bombed from the air and sunk off Valencia today.

The ship, the Thorpehall, was hit by two bombs from a seaplane about a mile off Valencia.

The planes scored two direct hits. One officer and one member of the crew were wounded.

Meanwhile Great Britain's determined and "realistic" program for European peace encountered few difficulties.

The Loyalist government broke through insurgent lines on the Catalan front in a counter-offensive designed to recapture Barcelona's power source in the Trep area. Huge Loyalist reinforcements, supplied with fresh war materials, pounded at the rebel trenches and claimed to have advanced over the San Cornelio range of mountains to within six miles of Trep.

At the same time, a band of 1,000 Phalangists (rebels) who had been imprisoned behind the rebel lines because of trouble with the Italians aiding the insurgent armies were reportedly escaped and fled to positions near the French frontier. The insurgents claimed to have trapped them there and French mobile guards were rushed to the border.

CARDENAS' ARMY AWAITING MOVE BY REBEL FORCE

SAN LUIS POTOSI, Mexico, May 25—(UP)—Federal troops today guarded all important roads, including the new Pan American highway into the United States, in anticipation of new forays by the rebel raiders of Gen. Saturnino Cedillo.

Airplanes reconnoitered over almost the entire area between here and the border, particularly along important roads into Tamaulipas state. The Pan American highway, the principal route of American auto tourists into Mexico, was watched particularly.

Mexican coast patrols off Vera Cruz were ordered to watch the Tamaulipas coast to prevent possible entry of contraband arms destined for the outlaws. The Guatemalan frontier also was guarded.

The new precautions were taken after unconfirmed reports had been received at the headquarters here of President Lazaro Cardenas that the Cedillistas were attempting to obtain arms from the United States.

JURY TO START MOSLEY TRIAL DELIBERATIONS

MT. VERNON, May 25—(UP)—The first degree murder case against Fred Mosley, 42, farmer accused of killing his wife near Centerburg last March 31, was expected to be given to a jury of nine men and three women late today.

Judge Charles Hayden gave his charge to the jury after Prosecutor W. L. Howell and Stanley Goodrich, defense counsel, completed their arguments.

House Approves Administration Action By 314 to 97 Ballot; Pepper and Hill May Join Harrison's Opposition

WASHINGTON, May 25—(UP)—The house sent the embattled wages and hours bill to the senate today where it faces a consolidated southern fight for wage differentials.

A powerful administration drive defeated attempts in the house to amend the universal standard for wages and hours after nearly 12 hours of debate. The house voted, 214 to 97, at 10:45 o'clock last night to pass the bill in virtually the same form as written by Chairman Mary T. Norton, D. N. J., of the house labor committee.

But the southern opposition in the Senate will be stronger. It was bulwarked by the support of Sen. Pat Harrison, D. Miss., who will be one of the leaders in the fight to make the wage provisions more flexible in southern states.

Even Sens. Claude Pepper, D. Fla., and Lister Hill, D. Ala., staunch southern New Dealers who recently won campaign contests in which they advocated wages and hours legislation, indicated that they would support Harrison's drive.

The house bill was guided to passage last night without major amendment by Chairman Norton, her labor committee and an unofficial steering committee of 50.

To Aid Rail Workers
An amendment, offered by Rep. Robert Crosser, D. O., to bring railroad employees under the wage provisions of the bill, was adopted after it was approved by Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, D. Tex. The amendment, it was explained, would affect only maintenance workers; other rail workers receive more than the minimum.

Other amendment adopted would exempt child movie stars from the child labor provisions and exempt weekly or semi-weekly newspapers with circulation of 3,000 and less.

The tally on the final vote for passage showed that 256 Democrats, 46 Republicans, seven Progressives and five Farmer-Laborites voted for passage; 41 Republicans and 56 Democrats voted against it.

SHERIFF HUNTS YOUTH WHO HIT COUNTY WOMAN

The sheriff's department was searching Wednesday for Daniel Glenn, 17, who disappeared Tuesday after he is alleged to have struck Mrs. William Creager, of near Ashville, on the head with a piece of garden hose.

Officers said Glenn was formerly in the Children's home and had resided with the Creagers for several years.

Mrs. Creager was dazed by the blow, deputies said, but she was not seriously injured. No charge has been filed.

Deputy Sheriff's Earl Weaver and Robert Armstrong went to the Creager home, just north of Ashville, to investigate.

SIDEWALK, CURB, GUTTER WORK RESUMES MONDAY

L. E. Miller, service director, said Wednesday that he hoped to open the city's sidewalk, curb and gutter program under W. P. A. next Monday. He said the program would probably be started on E. Mound street, finishing up a portion not completed last year.

Harry K. Thaw in Court Again

HARRY K. THAW, central figure in the sensational trial of 1906, when he was acquitted of the murder of Stanford White on the grounds that he was insane at the time of the fatal shooting, is in court again, this time as a defendant in suit brought by a man credited with saving his life. Thaw is pictured with one of his attorneys, Alfred Bodard, entering federal court in New York City to defend suit for $10,000 brought by Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe, alienist, who charges he never was paid for his testimony at Thaw's murder trial. Dr. Jelliffe's expert testimony convinced the jury that Thaw was not responsible at time of shooting.

CITY MAY REDUCE LIGHTS, HYDRANTS

Officials Consider Necessity Of Reducing Expenses; Problem To Be Present At Council's Next Session

Possibility of reducing the number of fire hydrants and street lights in use in Circleville as an economy measure was discussed at a meeting of city officials Tuesday evening.

The meeting was called in an effort to find a solution to the financial problem faced by the city for the next five months. Those present at the meeting were Miss Lillian Young, city auditor; W. B. Cady, mayor; L. E. Miller, service director, and members of council's finance committee. Ben Gordon, Frank Lynch and Clarence Helvering.

The group arrived at no definite decision as to how pare expenses. The problem will be presented to council at its next regular meeting for discussion.

Estimates prepared by Miss Young show that the city faces a shortage of about $5,000 for the next five months. All departments will be asked to cut expenses as low as possible.

"We have to cut down some way, but we don't know where to start," Mr. Gordon, chairman of the finance committee, explained.

FLOOD WATERS DELAY SEARCH FOR YOUTH, 16

Flood waters, Wednesday, prevented dragging in the Scioto river for the body of Clarence Fowler, 16, Maplewood avenue and Huston street, drowned last Saturday while swimming just north of the W. Main street bridge.

Several groups dragged the stream Tuesday afternoon. Dragging operations had continued since Saturday.

Wednesday at 7:30 a. m. the river was 7.6 feet above normal at the W. Main street bridge as compared with 3.64 feet above normal at the same hour Tuesday. The stream is flooding the highways have been affected by low bottom lands. No main the high waters.

ROAD OPENING DELAYED

Recent inclement weather will cause a delay in the opening of Route 23, north of Chillicothe. Earlier plans were to open the highway about the middle of June.

BERGEN PROVIDES FOR CHARLIE IN ODD WILL

HOLLYWOOD, May 25—(UP)—Edgar Bergen, the movie and radio ventriloquist, has drawn a will that is unusual, even for Hollywood, it was revealed today. Bergen provides for his wooden dummy, Charlie McCarthy, almost as a man would his son.

The Bergen will bequeaths $10,000 to the Actor's Fund of America with the stipulation that Charlie must be kept in good repair and be used as much as possible to perpetuate the art of ventriloquism. Bergen and Charlie boomed to success, and are now starring in the picture "Letter of Introduction." Bergen had the first ventriloquist-dummy act ever to go on the radio.

GOVERNORS BIDS FOR A. F. L. AID

Woman Heckles Davey As Relief Clients Picket Cleveland Hall

CLEVELAND, May 25—(UP)—While Governor Martin L. Davey made a bid for American Federation of Labor support in the coming state elections, 200 relief clients picketed Public Hall in protest against his appearance here last night.

The relievers, members of the Workers' Alliance and the Association for Unemployed, have blamed the governor and other officials for failure of the legislature to pass an adequate relief program to date.

When Gov. Davey called himself "a friend of labor," a woman in the balcony of the hall interrupted him with:

"Flowery speeches don't mean anything."

"She must be a Communist," the governor said. "I can get along with any of the folk in labor circles except the Communists, and they don't belong in America."

He added that "there is one thing we won't stand for in Ohio and that is lawlessness, violence and coercion."

"When John Lewis tried to get a stranglehold in Ohio, he met his Waterloo. John Lewis says I can't be governor of Ohio again. The trouble is he doesn't vote in Ohio."

"I'll take my chances with the old, tried and true American Federation of Labor."

The governor was interrupted a few times by boos.

Burr Congwer, "regular" Cleveland Democratic leader, and James R. Devitt, acting chairman for "insurgent" Democrats, had been invited to the rally but did not attend.

PENNSYLVANIA'S NOMINEES MEET WITH PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, May 25—(UP)—Leaders of the Pennsylvania Democratic organization which won victories in last week's primary, conferred today with President Roosevelt.

Gov. George H. Earle, Democratic nominee for senator; Charles Alvin Jones of Pittsburgh, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, and David L. Lawrence, chairman of the state central committee, called at the White House.

Their conference followed a strategy meeting yesterday of the Democratic-Committee for Industrial Organization faction they defeated in the primary balloting.

SAMS DOES NOT ASK REELECTION TO SCHOOL POST

The Deercreek township board of education will meet next Tuesday to consider applicants for the position of superintendent. H. L. Sams, completing his second year, did not apply for reappointment.

Maribel Ater, Williamsport, was employed Tuesday by the board as second grade teacher to succeed Mrs. Ed. Hagard, resigned. All other teachers were reemployed with the exception of Paul Rose, instrumental music instructor, and Calloway Taubee, history and science teacher.

TWO BRUISED AS CYCLE STRIKES ROUTE 22 POST

Two Williamsport men escaped with bruises Wednesday noon when the motorcycle on which they were riding struck a guard post and overturned on Route 22, just east of the Ralston-Purina elevator.

There names were not learned.

AIRLINER BURNS AFTER FALLING AT CLEVELAND

Victims Trapped Inside Big Plane; Confusing Stories Told

TRAGEDY CAUSE SOUGHT

Flames Prevent Effort To Rescue Passengers

CLEVELAND, May 25—(UP)—Flames streamed from a motor of a transport plane just before it crashed last night, killing 10 persons, witnesses said today. The plane seemed to explode as it struck the ground and was enveloped instantly in flames.

Not until early today, two hours after the United air lines sleeper plane fell out of the sky almost within sight of its destination, the Cleveland airport, had the ruins cooled enough for the bodies of the seven passengers, two pilots, and a stewardess to be removed. All were burned beyond any possibility of recognition.

The plane bound for Los Angeles, had left the Newark, N. J. airport at 7:30 o'clock last night and had been due here at 10:15 p. m. It crashed approximately three miles from the airport at 10:17 p. m., near the suburban town of Independence.

Cause Uncertain

The accident was one of the most mysterious of any commercial plane crash because it was without a readily ascertainable cause. The plane was a Douglas twin-motored transport equipped as a "sleeper." Flying conditions were excellent, visibility unlimited. The terrain over which it was flying is flat, and, 10 minutes before the crash, Pilot James L. Brandon, of Lagrange, Ill., a veteran of the commercial airways, had radioed that all was well.

But all was not well as Brandon brought his big plane through the clear night toward the airport. The airport towerman sighted it and reported it about to land. Then something happened. Witnesses on the ground several miles away said they saw flames shooting from one of the motors, and, judging from the sound, they believed that only one of its motors was operating.

A few seconds later flames shot down from the plane and lighted up the countryside. Then the plane, which had been flying low, fell to the earth and burst into flame.

Jack Berry, manager of the Cleveland airport, announced that his towerman had actually seen the crash and that the plane had not shown flames until after it hit the ground. Berry believed that the 10 were killed by the impact and had not been burned to death.

The victims were: John Brostuen, Alexander, N. D. Charles Doty, Boston. R. C. Lewis, Ansonia, Conn. C. F. Nickel, New York City. J. R. Moffett, Chicago. R. P. Morrell, New York. E. H. Veblen, Santa Monica, Cal. James L. Brandon, Lagrange, Ill., pilot.

Austin Merrifield, Los Angeles, co-pilot.

Mildred Macek, Milwaukee, hostess.

AIRLINER BURNS AFTER FALLING AT CLEVELAND

on the side of a mountain near Saugus, Cal., killing nine persons—three men, four women, and two babies. Destined for service with the Northwest airlines, it still was in the hands of its builders.

The bodies of last night's victims were taken to the Cuyahoga county morgue here. It will never be known whether they died in the crash or were burned to death, but all evidence indicated that all had been killed instantly, before flame enveloped the wreckage.

The plane fell across a ravine. It had started clipping trees 150 feet away. It was intact from its rear door back, but forward it was twisted and broken. One wing was thrown back of the ship, the other forward. One motor was ripped out and thrown far forward.

James Wynn, the airport towerman, did not agree with his superior, Berry. He said he saw the running lights of the plane and had been about "to talk her in" when he lost sight of the lights and thought something had happened. A few seconds later he saw the flames.

Carl Reik of Independence said he watched the plane flying low, headed for the airport. Suddenly he noticed that one of its motors was sputtering.

"Then I saw a flare drop as if the pilot was hunting a landing spot," he said. "Flames seemed to be shooting from the left motor and the other one apparently was not working. Then the ship zoomed up with a roar as though the pilot was trying to gain altitude and also to blot out the flames. I heard a great roar and she went down."

Witness Testifies

Al Carrossella, 20, Independence was another witness.

"I noticed a loud sputtering in the plane as I was walking home from my girl's house," he said. "I saw a flare drop and then in a few seconds the ship went down out of sight."

Howard Bartell, a rural mail carrier, saw the crash and rushed to the scene hoping to save the mail. But it and all contents of the giant silver "main-liner" were beyond saving. There had been heavy rains in the last week and the surrounding fields were bogs. In them the fire trucks of four Cleveland suburbs, responding to the alarm, were mired, but it would have been impossible to extinguish the flames which burned hotly, fed by the fuel in the plane's tanks.

In Washington, the Department of Commerce, announced its inspectors would begin an investigation today to ascertain the cause. Harold T. Cray, vice-president of United air lines, announced in Chicago that the company would make no statement as to cause until the Department of Commerce finished its work. He said that in 11 years of operating between New York and Cleveland, the company had flown 44,000 trips and that this was its first passenger fatality.

The ship's instruments were all charred in the fierce fire and it was not believed that they would reveal anything to the department of commerce experts. All pilots are scheduled from the time of their first flights away to cut off the ignition before a crash and it was inconceivable to his friends here that Pilot Brandon, a veteran and a master, had neglected this rudimentary precaution against fire. But if the ship had been on fire before it crashed, butting the ignition switch would not have saved it from flames after the crash.

The Cleveland airport is nine miles from the city in a south-westerly direction. The plane was three miles from the airport when it crashed and south of the city proper, about 19 miles south of Cleveland's public square.

Brandon, 41, was with the British Royal Air forces during the World War and later was a pilot with the White Russian forces. He had been with United since August, 1927, and had 12,000 hours flying experience. He was married in 1932 to Elphie Hartshorn of Kansas City. He leaves his widow and a son, Gordon, 18 months old.

Miss Macke was 27 years old. She joined the United personnel in August, 1937, and only recently was transferred to the Newark-Cleveland run.

6. Subservience to political and other special interests.

Dr. Morgan appeared at the first hearing of the joint senate and house committee named by congress to inquire into the series of charges and counter-charges directed by members of the T. V. A. board at each other.

H. A. Morgan and Lillenthal are expected to place their side of the story before the committee tomorrow.

The initial sessions of the inquiry are to be devoted to statements by the directors without exhaustive examination of evidence and questioning—phases of the inquiry to be undertaken later after counsel has been appointed by the committee.

WAGE-HOUR

mum wage in interstate industries, with certain exemptions, of 25 cents an hour for the first year, 30 cents the second, 35 cents the third and 40 cents for the fourth and succeeding years.

A maximum work week of 44 hours would be provided for the first year, decreasing in two years to 40 hours.

Administration would be lodged with the secretary of labor, authorized to determine industries operating in interstate commerce or affecting such commerce.

Under a labor standard bill passed by the senate last year, for which the house substituted its measure, a board would be established to fix minimum wage and maximum hour standards after consideration of costs of living, relative cost of transportation and local economic conditions.

The board would not be authorized to establish minimum wages in excess of 40 cents per hour nor maximum hours or less than 40 hours per week, unless an advisory committee comprised of representatives of management and labor, makes a favorable recommendation for such action.

Both bills contain provisions designed to prohibit the manufacture of goods by child labor. To implement the wages and hours provisions, they also prohibit interstate shipment of goods manufactured under "oppressive" labor conditions.

ANNIVERSARY OF WESLEY CONVERSION IS OBSERVED

Celebration of the 200th anniversary of John Wesley's Aldergate experience, held Tuesday evening in the Methodist church, was an outstanding success. Approximately 150 persons enjoyed a covered dish dinner at 6:30, arranged by the Ladies Aid society on a long table at the entrance to the dining room. Roses were used in the decorations.

The program, given in the main auditorium, was presided over by the Rev. Herman A. Sayre, who spoke briefly about the Wesley experience.

Three selections were sung by a trio comprised of Mrs. Delos Marcy, Miss Ruby Harris and Miss Ruth Moffitt. The organ accompaniment was by Miss Betty Sayre.

Speaking on the subject, "Methodist Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow," the Revs. Ellsworth Allen of Commercial Point, W. C. Peters of Ashville, D. H. Householder of Williamsport and Charles L. Thomas of the local church gave many interesting incidents from the life of Wesley.

An impressive period of silent prayer was observed at 8:45, it being the exact time of Wesley's conversion 200 years ago.

Several old time hymns were sung by the congregation.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU

BY BOB BURNS

I don't suppose a day goes by that somebody don't call me up or come around to see me and tell me how to invest what little money I have left and tell me what's wrong with the investments I've made so far. That's one thing I admire about my own folks. They do mind their own business.

One day, Uncle Hod was going to town and he saw a fella sittin' at the edge of the pond, fishin'. Uncle says "Any luck?" The man says "No."

Late that evening, when my uncle was comin' back, there was the fella still sittin' there fishin'.

My uncle says "Any luck yet?" The man says "I ain't got a bite—are there any fish in this pond?" Uncle Hod says "Well now, I don't know, brother, you see, before yesterday's big rain that pond wasn't there."

NAZIS PREPARE NOTE TO CZECHS

had been plain portents of a new crisis as the newspapers, closely controlled by the government, reopened attacks on Czechoslovakia.

Diplomatists watched Eger, just across the frontier from Germany, in fear of some incident that might cause an explosion. Funeral services were held there for two "martyr" Sudeten Germans killed Saturday.

Newspaper comment was developing along lines like those which last week-end alarmed all Europe—allegations that Czech soldiers fired at a party of Sudeten German party officials at Ellbogen; that a Czech military plane flew over German territory near Annaberg Monday and took photographs; that Czech soldiers were replacing customs officers along the frontier and thereby "regretably aggravating tension" along the frontier.

The German attitude toward both the Czechs and the efforts of Great Britain to mediate, stiffened. Restraint imposed on the newspapers after their attacks of the week-end—which first awoke European statesmen to the danger in the minority problem—was loosened again sufficiently to permit bitter accounts of frontier incidents and angry comment on the Czechoslovak government's activities.

Design Questioned

Whether this was a deliberate maneuver, designed to exert pressure on Czechoslovak and Britain, or whether it revealed an actual rising of temperature in Berlin remained to be seen. It was evident, however, that the time of anxiety had by no means passed and that the entire situation was at the mercy of irresponsible outbreaks of violence.

The fact that Adolf Hitler sent wreaths in honor of two Sudeten German farmers, killed by Czech policemen, whose funerals were held today at Eger, and the presence at the funerals of the German military and air attaches to Prague, was interpreted as a sort of Nazi sponsorship for the "martyrization" of the victims and made it evident that any outbreak between Czech soldiers or police and the almost exclusively German population of Eger, where the services were held, would have serious repercussions here.

This morning the Nazi party newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, featured a dispatch from Prague alleging that Czech soldiers, guarding a bridge at Ellbogen, fired without warning on Sudeten German officials as they returned from a party meeting Monday night. Adding that the correspondent who telephoned the dispatch was cut off, the newspaper commented: "This is proof that press reports are being tapped and censored."

This afternoon, the press grew even more belligerent.

The first afternoon newspaper to appear, the Zwofelur-blatt, devoted its entire front page to developments in the Czechoslovakian situation.

"Incomprehensible Events on Reich's Frontiers," "Military Preparations—Against Whom?" "Prague Calls for More Reserves: Cannon on House-tops and Barri-cades in Streets," were some headlines based on Warsaw newspaper reports from Prague.

Stories Displayed

The alleged firing on Sudeten German officials at Ellbogen was displayed prominently, as was the story of the wreaths which Hitler sent to the Eger funeral. "Feuhrer

HORNER TO PUT NAME ON BILL TO AID NEEDY

CHICAGO, May 25.—(UP)—Gov. Henry Horner will sign a $4,500,000 stop-gap appropriation bill today enabling immediate distribution of food to 91,000 Chicagoans who have subsisted for a week on meager rations provided by the federal government.

The bill, which had received house approval Monday, was passed by the senate early today. It reached the governor's desk in the minimum time of five days. It has been the only major issue considered by the legislators since they convened in extraordinary session Friday night.

A companion measure, permitting the Illinois emergency relief commissions to increase its allotments, also was passed and awaited signature.

The appropriation will be divided among various counties. About $329,000 will be available to meet Chicago relief's crisis until June 1 when regular monthly allotments, to be increased to $3,500,000, will be due.

6. Subservience to political and other special interests. Dr. Morgan appeared at the first hearing of the joint senate and house committee named by congress to inquire into the series of charges and counter-charges directed by members of the T. V. A. board at each other.

H. A. Morgan and Lilienthal are expected to place their side of the story before the committee tomorrow.

The initial sessions of the inquiry are to be devoted to statements by the directors without exhaustive examination of evidence and questioning—phases of the inquiry to be undertaken later after counsel has been appointed by the committee.

WAGE-HOUR

mum wage in interstate industries, with certain exemptions, of 25 cents an hour for the first year, 30 cents the second, 35 cents the third and 40 cents for the fourth and succeeding years.

A maximum work week of 44 hours would be provided for the first year, decreasing in two years to 40 hours.

Administration would be lodged with the secretary of labor, authorized to determine industries operating in interstate commerce or affecting such commerce.

Under a labor standard bill passed by the senate last year, for which the house substituted its measure, a board would be established to fix minimum wage and maximum hour standards after consideration of costs of living, relative cost of transportation and local economic conditions.

The board would not be authorized to establish minimum wages in excess of 40 cents per hour nor maximum hours or less than 40 hours per week, unless an advisory committee comprised of representatives of management and labor, makes a favorable recommendation for such action.

Both bills contain provisions designed to prohibit the manufacture of goods by child labor. To implement the wages and hours provisions, they also prohibit interstate shipment of goods manufactured under "oppressive" labor conditions.

ANNIVERSARY OF WESLEY CONVERSION IS OBSERVED

Celebration of the 200th anniversary of John Wesley's Aldergate experience, held Tuesday evening in the Methodist church, was an outstanding success. Approximately 150 persons enjoyed a covered dish dinner at 6:30, arranged by the Ladies Aid society on a long table at the entrance to the dining room. Roses were used in the decorations.

The program, given in the main auditorium, was presided over by the Rev. Herman A. Sayre, who spoke briefly about the Wesley experience.

Three selections were sung by a trio comprised of Mrs. Delos Marcy, Miss Ruby Harris and Miss Ruth Moffitt. The organ accompaniment was by Miss Betty Sayre. Speaking on the subject, "Methodist Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow", the Revs. Ellsworth Allen of Commercial Point, W. C. Peters of Ashville, D. H. Householder of Williamsport and Charles L. Thomas of the local church gave many interesting incidents from the life of Wesley.

An impressive period of silent prayer was observed at 8:45, it being the exact time of Wesley's conversion 200 years ago. Several old time hymns were sung by the congregation.

PENNEY CO. EMPLOYEES CONDUCT SALES EVENT

Employees of the J. C. Penney Co. are in charge of a big sales event this week, details of which appear on Page 3 of Wednesday's Daily Herald.

Circleville store employees are joining with associates of 1,526 other Penney units in conducting the big event. Many special bargains are offered during the employees' sale.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU.

BY BOB BURNS

I don't suppose a day goes by that somebody don't call me up or come around to see me and tell me how to invest what little money I have left and tell me what's wrong with the investments I've made so far. That's one thing I admire about my own folks. They do mind their own business.

One day, Uncle Hod was going to town and he saw a fella sittin' at the edge of the pond, fishin'. Uncle says "Any luck?" The man says "No."

Late that evening, when my uncle was comin' back, there was the fella still sittin' there fishin'. My uncle says "Any luck yet?" The man says "I ain't got a bite—are there any fish in this pond?" Uncle Hod says "Well now, I don't know, brother, you see, before yesterday's big rain that pond wasn't there."

had been plain portents of a new crisis as the newspapers, closely controlled by the government, reopened attacks on Czechoslovakia.

Diplomatists watched Eger, just across the frontier from Germany, in fear of some incident that might cause an explosion. Funeral services were held there for two "martyr" Sudeten Germans killed Saturday.

Newspaper comment was developing along lines like those which last week-end alarmed all Europe—allegations that Czech soldiers fired at a party of Sudeten German party officials at Ellbogen; that a Czech military plane flew over German territory near Annaberg Monday and took photographs; that Czech soldiers were replacing customs officers along the frontier and thereby "regretably aggravating tension" along the frontier.

The German attitude toward both the Czechs and the efforts of Great Britain to mediate, stiffened. Restraint imposed on the newspapers after their attacks of the week-end—which first awoke European statesmen to the danger in the minority problem—was loosened again sufficiently to permit bitter accounts of frontier incidents and angry comment on the Czechoslovak government's activities.

Design Questioned

Whether this was a deliberate maneuver, designed to exert pressure on Czechoslovak and Britain, or whether it revealed an actual rising of temperature in Berlin remained to be seen. It was evident, however, that the time of anxiety had by no means passed and that the entire situation was at the mercy of irresponsible outbreaks of violence.

The fact that Adolf Hitler sent wreaths in honor of two Sudeten German farmers, killed by Czech policemen, whose funerals were held today at Eger, and the presence at the funerals of the German military and air attaches to Prague, was interpreted as a sort of Nazi sponsorship for the "martyrization" of the victims and made it evident that any outbreak between Czech soldiers or police and the almost exclusive, German population of Eger, where the services were held, would have serious repercussions here.

This morning the Nazi party newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, featured a dispatch from Prague alleging that Czech soldiers, guarding a bridge at Ellbogen, fired without warning on Sudeten German officials as they returned from a party meeting Monday night. Adding that the correspondent who telephoned the dispatch was cut off, the newspaper commented: "This is proof that press reports are being tapped and censored."

This afternoon, the press grew even more belligerent. The first afternoon newspaper to appear, the Zweifur-blatt, devoted its entire front page to developments in the Czechoslovakian situation.

"Incomprehensible Events on Reich's Frontiers," "Military Preparations—Against Whom?" "Prague Calls for More Reserves: Cannon on House-tops and Barricades in Streets," were some headlines based on Warsaw newspaper reports from Prague.

Stories Displayed The alleged firing on Sudeten German officials at Ellbogen was displayed prominently, as was the story of the wreaths which Hitler sent to the Eger funeral. "Feuhrer HONORS EGER MARTYRS," WAS THE HEADLINE.

In comment on the front page, such question as these were directed to Premier Milan Hodza of Czechoslovakia: "Why does Hodza act as if military hostilities had already begun? Perhaps his conscience does not permit him to sleep because guns have been placed on every house-top and trenches in every back yard? Is he unaware that such measures are in themselves provocations? Does he not know from British sources that there are no troop movements in Germany? Are Hodza's measures meant to be a screen from behind which 'incidents' may be staged more easily?"

As regards reports of new German troop movements, an extensive canvass was made by telephone of well informed sources in the Munich area. The result was agreement that there were no signs at present of unusual military activities such as preceded the German march into Austria, and that there was no evidence of troop movements.

It was apparent that the attitude toward both the Czechs and the efforts by Great Britain to mediate had stiffened. Brakes imposed on the newspapers after their attacks of the week-end—which first awoke European statesmen to the danger in the minority problem—was loosened sufficiently to permit bitter allegations and angry comment.

The Nazi party official newspaper organ Voelkischer Beobachter accused Britain of trying to "falsify" history. It accused Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain with falling, in a speech he made in the House of Commons Monday, to tell all the facts—facts which, the newspaper said, would have shown that not Germany but Czechoslovakia "acted as a provocateur and played with fire."

"Britain's guilt, however," is even greater," continued the article. "The British government not only first, on Saturday, issued a misleading statement that Konrad Henlein, minority leader, demanded guarantees; secondly trifled away valuable time by foolish and repeated queries in Berlin instead of energetically calling Prague to order; and thirdly paved the way for falsification of history by Chamberlain's incomplete survey on Monday, but fourthly added itself to international events by advising British residents of Berlin to evacuate their families and also made preparations for their evacuation."

To Impress Berlin "These childish measures were probably meant to make an impression in Berlin. In reality they only caused a smile of pity."

But it was nothing to laugh about, the newspaper continued, when London and Paris newspapers talked proudly of British firmness preventing war. Only Germany's cool headedness had been responsible, the newspaper said, while France and Britain sought only to obtain a success for the prestige of the "so called democratic world."

When the Bible was translated into the Eskimo language, "baby seal" was substituted every time the word "lamb" appeared.

SHANGHAI, May 25.—(UP)—Japanese forces in central China advanced toward the provisional capital of Hankow today by land, air and water.

Japanese reports claimed their troops smashed their way west along the Lung-Hai railway to within ten miles of Kaifeng, and approximately 50 miles of Chengchow, the junction where the east-west Lung-Rai line meets the north-south Hankow-Peiping railroad. Chengchow is about 250 miles north of Hankow.

Japanese warships steamed up the Yangtze and shelled the shorelines as far as Tatung, above the city of Wuhu.

A column of Japanese troops pressed west from Hefei toward the Hankow-Peiping railroad and another drove south on Anking.

HORNER TO PUT NAME ON BILL TO AID NEEDY

CHICAGO, May 25 — (UP) — Gov. Henry Horner will sign a $4,500,000 stop-gap appropriation bill today enabling immediate distribution of food to 91,000 Chicagoans who have subsisted for a week on meager rations provided by the federal government.

The bill, which had received house approval Monday, was passed by the senate early today. It reached the governor's desk in the minimum time of five days. It has been the only major issue considered by the legislators since they convened in extraordinary session Friday night.

A companion measure, permitting the Illinois emergency relief commissions to increase its allotments, also was passed and awaited signature.

The appropriation will be divided among various counties. About $329,000 will be available to meet Chicago relief's crisis until June 1 when regular monthly allotments, to be increased to $3,500,000, will be due.

The legislative action allayed threats of actual suffering among 34,000 families, left without the means of clothing, shelter and proper food when the Chicago relief administration's funds and supplies ran out last Wednesday. The majority had been placed on a diet consisting mostly of beans and rice, distributed by the federal surplus commodity corporation.

NEW SPLIT OVER RELIEF DISRUPTS OHIO ASSEMBLY

Urban, Rural Blocs Unable To Decide Distribution Of Tax Funds

SCHOOL THREAT HEARD

Democrats Caucus, Vote To Delay Ballot

COLUMBUS, May 25—(UP)—A new split between urban and rural blocs in the house of representatives over distribution of state collected taxes to local government funds threatened additional complications today on the allied relief problem that has defied efforts at solution thus far.

The schism, created by a proposal to restore a former method of allocating local government funds from the sales tax in favor of cities, temporarily dashed urban hopes that rural interests would accede to distribution of relief funds on the basis of need when a program on that subject is finally drafted.

The rural position on the allied subject of local government allocations indicated that city expectations for the rural interests to retreat from their demand for relief funds irrespective of needs was perhaps overly optimistic. City men warned that unless rural elements relented they may meet opposition when the school problem comes up in the fall.

Under the school foundation program cities contribute materially to weak school districts from state collected taxes.

Rurals May Suffer
The dispute was precipitated on the Sheely bill to allocate local government sales tax funds on the basis of municipal tax duplicates rather than county duplicates. Under the proposed change cities would receive substantially more and rural areas less.

Until the last relief session distribution was made on the basis of municipal duplicates and urban members accused rural interests of "slipping one over" when the basis was changed to county duplicates at that time.

Cleveland members said the change in favor of the cities would mean an additional $1,000,000 there annually and held that if general operating costs could be cared for to that extent from state collected levies, more money would be released for direct relief purposes.

A house Democratic caucus decided to delay a vote on the measure until after the committee investigating urban relief conditions reports.

Thus far efforts to determine on a relief program have come to naught although the taxation committees of both houses were groping for a solution. It was tentatively agreed in the house taxation committee that no tax bills would be reported until after the investigating committee submits its findings.

Efforts were renewed to have the federal government step into the breach by allocating funds for direct relief in the proposed $1,250,000,000 W. P. A. program, although members who have been to Washington said this hope was futile.

Earmarking Urged
Resolutions were introduced by Reps. Michael DiSalle, D., Lucas, and W. D. Burgett, R., Ashtabula, asking Congress to earmark $25,000,000 for direct relief of which Ohio would get $20,000,000. Burgett also proposed that a six-man committee carry the plea directly to Congress.

The house passed and sent to the senate two minor relief bills allowing subdivisions to use excess inheritance and intangible taxes for poor relief and assuring counties of authority to issue bonds in anticipation of excise tax collections. Both bills passed unanimously as did a senate approved measure to appropriate $143,200 for expense of the legislature in this session.

A bill was reintroduced by Rep. E. J. Gardner, D., Butler, to authorize issuance of bonds against delinquent tax collections up to 70 percent after deductions of amounts previously encumbered.

INTANGIBLE AND TANGIBLE CASH FUNDS DIVIDED

May distribution of tangible and intangible tax money collected with the filing of personal tax returns, totalling $31,654.04, was announced Wednesday by County Auditor Forrest Short.

Of the above amount $20,274.97 was collected on tangible personal property and $11,379.07 on intangibles or classified property. In the tangible tax distribution, $6,184.02 goes to the county, $2,431.35 to townships, $8,965.96 to school districts, and $2,693.64 to corporations. The classified distribution includes $27.58 to the state, $8,000 to the Circleville library, $625.48 to the county, $1,219 to corporations, and $1,503.12 to schools.

The distribution is slightly less than the one a year ago, records show. Last year a total of $31,971.30 was distributed. Circleville city receives $3,141.11 in the distribution and the city school district $1,655.35.

SUMMER STOPS ARRANGED FOR LIBRARY TRUCK

Seven new stops have been added to the county book truck routes for the summer vacation period.

Daniel Pfoutz, librarian, announced Wednesday that throughout the Summer the truck will continue to make regular stops at the county schools. Since less time will be required at the school stops during the Summer, Mr. Pfoutz plans to add more stops to the routes so patrons will have ample opportunity to use the service.

New stops added to date are Pherson, first and third Wednesday of each month at 3:30 p. m.; St. Paul, second and fourth Thursday, 3:30 p. m.; Nebraska, second and fourth Thursday, 1 p. m.; Mead, second and fourth Friday, 11:30 a. m.; Whisler, 12:30 p. m., Stringtown, 1:30 p. m., and Leisville, 2 p. m.

ed. He maintained use of such a measure would enable local governments to carry their share of relief costs. A similar bill is before the senate taxation and relief committee.

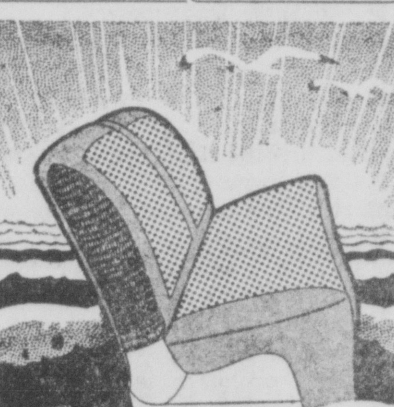

Rep. Lady Huml, D., Cuyahoga, again sponsored a bill to create a nine member commission to investigate relief problems and report to the legislature by December 31 in order that plans for a 1939 relief program can be ready for the next general assembly.

It was tentatively agreed in the house taxation committee that no tax bills would be reported until after the investigating committee submits its findings.

Efforts were renewed to have the federal government step into the breach by allocating funds for direct relief in the proposed $1,250,000,000 W. P. A. program, although members who have been to Washington said this hope was futile.

Earmarking Urged

Resolutions were introduced by Reps. Michael DiSalle, D., Lucas, and W. D. Burgett, R., Ashtabula, asking Congress to earmark $25,000,000 for direct relief of which Ohio would get $20,000,000. Burgett also proposed that a six-man committee carry the plea directly to Congress.

The house passed and sent to the senate two minor relief bills allowing subdivisions to use excess inheritance and intangible taxes for poor relief and assuring counties of authority to issue bonds in anticipation of excise tax collections. Both bills passed unanimously as did a senate approved measure to appropriate $143,200 for expense of the legislature in this session.

A bill was reintroduced by Rep. E. J. Gardner, D., Butler, to authorize issuance of bonds against delinquent tax collections up to 70 percent after deductions of amounts previously encumbered.

INTANGIBLE AND TANGIBLE CASH FUNDS DIVIDED

May distribution of tangible and intangible tax money collected with the filing of personal tax returns, totalling $31,654.04, was announced Wednesday by County Auditor Forrest Short.

Of the above amount $20,274.97 was collected on tangible personal property and $11,379.07 on intangibles or classified property. In the tangible tax distribution, $6,184.02 goes to the county, $2,431.35 to townships, $8,965.96 to school districts, and $2,693.64 to corporations. The classified distribution includes $27.58 to the state, $8,000 to the Circleville library, $625.48 to the county, $1,219 to corporations, and $1,503.12 to schools.

The distribution is slightly less than the one a year ago, records show. Last year a total of $31,971.30 was distributed. Circleville city receives $3,141.11 in the distribution and the city school district $1,655.35.

SUMMER STOPS ARRANGED FOR LIBRARY TRUCK

Seven new stops have been added to the county book truck routes for the summer vacation period.

Daniel Pfoutz, librarian, announced Wednesday that throughout the Summer the truck will continue to make regular stops at the county schools. Since less time will be required at the school stops during the Summer, Mr. Pfoutz plans to add more stops to the routes so patrons will have ample opportunity to use the service.

New stops added to date are Pherson, first and third Wednesday of each month at 3:30 p. m.; St. Paul, second and fourth Thursday, 3:30 p. m.; Nebraska, second and fourth Thursday, 1 p. m.; Mead, second and fourth Friday, 11:30 a. m.; Whisler, 12:30 p. m., Stringtown, 1:30 p. m., and Leistville, 2 p. m.

ed. He maintained use of such a measure would enable local governments to carry their share of relief costs. A similar bill is before the senate taxation and relief committee.

Rep. Lody Huml, D., Cuyahoga, again sponsored a bill to create a nine member commission to investigate relief problems and report to the legislature by December 31 in order that plans for a 1939 relief program can be ready for the next general assembly.

ONE BIG RACE

"I believe that, wherever possible, school teachers should have the same nationality or racial background as the children they teach," says a school official in a midwestern metropolis.

Thus in a Polish neighborhood he would have teachers of Polish descent, in an Italian district Italian teachers, in a Jewish district Jewish teachers, and so on. A teacher from the same racial group will understand the children better, he explains, and can be more of an inspiration to them. It is an incentive for the boys and girls when they see how successful a person with the same start in life as theirs can become.

There is something in that view; but is it best on the whole, and in the long run, to have teachers and pupils racially alike? Many will doubt it.

Nowadays there is too much racial feeling in the world. Isn't it better for a while to forget race in the educational process of making Americans, and to remember that people are people, all members of one big group—the Human Race?

Doesn't the "melting pot" work better when teachers and pupils are of different origin, all giving and receiving and learning to get along with each other?

SIZE TO ORDER

IF we want to be a race of physical giants, all right. Maybe experiments that Dr. Herbert M. Evans, biologist in the University of California, has been conducting for many years, will make it possible. Dr. Evans has got to the point where he can add a pound to the weight of a rat by the simple process of putting into the rat's food one-twentieth of a grain of a gland extract. By the same procedure he has made an undersized 15-year-old boy grow 8½ inches in 21 months.

The gland is the pituitary, a pear-shaped thing at the base of the brain, about the size of a medium-sized acorn. It seems to be the most powerful gland in the body. It might be called many glands in one, for it serves as a sort of powerhouse controlling in various ways about a dozen physical organs and functions, by means of the hormones or chemical substances that it pours into the blood stream. Dr. Evans extracts his hormones from the pituitary glands of oxen. Apparently any animal would do.

This quest seems, to many scientists, to offer the most promise of anything yet discovered, for regulating man's physical growth and development. It might even result in improvement of the human brain, directly or through the improved functioning of other organs.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

IF, AS INDICATED, the Roosevelt administration resumes silver purchases from Mexico, it may head off a Fascist state at the very border of the United States.

Mexico depends on oil and silver for her ready cash. Without ready cash, the Cardenas regime, the most democratic in Latin America, might fall before a Fascist dictatorship. The present uprising of General Cedillo may not yet be the real test. General unrest might come not from such an isolated political revolt as from general economic pressure.

Mexico is having difficulty selling its oil, since it expropriated properties of foreign oil companies for refusing to obey a court labor decree. (The oil, incidentally, always has belonged to the nation; it could only give concessions for the production of it to private corporations.) Now the large corporations have tried to block the sale of Mexican oil.

On the other hand, British oil companies had invested millions for years developing Mexican oil properties and markets, only to have their properties expropriated at the moment they began to show a profit.

An interesting picture of Mexico is painted by D. Graham Hutton, associate editor of the London Economist, writing in the June issue of Pacific Affairs, quarterly journal of the Institute of Pacific relations.

A memorandum by the Institute summarizes Mr. Hutton's conclusions in this manner: Although Mexican foreign policy has favored Soviet Russia, China, Ethiopia and the Spanish republic, this carries no guarantee that Mexico is headed for a Socialist state in the Soviet sense, nor does it mean that Mexico will take a stand with other powers in a combined democratic stand against Fascist-minded aggressors or politicians. Fear of Fascist penetration is balanced against suspicion of democratic capitalistic enterprises in Mexico. Mr. Hutton observes, moreover, that domestic discontents are steadily pushing Mexico into the arena of the world's great powers.

The Cardenas regime, according to Mr. Hutton, has sought to sit on the fence between an out-and-out proletarian dictatorship and the familiar system of bourgeois government in the hands of large landowners, big business and their tools in the armed forces and civil service. Internally, he indicates, Mexico has not yet solved the political problems caused by the integration of domestic politics thirty years ago under the dictatorship of Porfirio Diaz. Application by Cardenas of parts of the Six-Year Plan aimed at improving the well-being of the Indian masses making up more than half of the population, has subordinated the Catholic church to the state and forced redistribution of foreign and bourgeois-owned haciendas, for which no compensation has been paid, to small village communities.

As a result of present policies of agrarian reform and confiscation of foreign enterprises, the author shows that "the Cardenas regime is assailed by economic problems due to overacceleration of necessary reforms, often in questionable directions."

The great powers of the world are all bound, Mr. Hutton observes, to adopt strong attitudes towards the problems raised by Mexican acts. Forced by events, Anglo-American interests have been cemented in Mexico, and their national policy is based on a negative process of reacting to positive Mexican actions.

DUCE WORKS SQUEEZE PLAY

WASHINGTON — One good gauge of how serious the Germans are about getting into Czechoslovakia is that the Italians have moved troops to the border of Tunis in North Africa to work a squeeze play on France.

This is extremely significant.

Inhabited by more Italians than Frenchmen, Tunis long has been a sore spot in French-Italian relations, especially in recent months when Mussolini has made a specialty of stirring up the Moslem races against the French and British.

To concentrate Italian troops near the Tunisian border, therefore means tying up the French at their own back door. This, in turn, makes it more difficult for them to move at their front door—which is Czechoslovakia.

This squeeze play was undoubtedly worked out by Hitler and Mussolini during their recent Roman love-feast. It indicates how wide of the mark the British shot in thinking they could drive a wedge between them. (Also how wide of the mark Roosevelt shot in blessing the Anglo-Italian agreement.)

SPANISH AIRDROMES

French hands also are tied at their side door by the fact that Italy and Germany have established a row of underground airdromes in Spain just south of the French border. Located 300 feet underground, thereby impervious to bombing, these airdromes fly the Italian and German flags, and according to military observers, Spaniards are not allowed to come near.

In case France should oppose Germany in Czechoslovakia, planes from these airdromes could be over important French cities in thirty minutes.

NOTE—This is not the first time Mussolini has worked an international squeeze play. Last Summer when the British were about to send ships from the Mediterranean to the China coast in order to tone down Japanese aggression, Il Duce started his submarine piracy campaign, thus forcing British ships to remain in Mediterranean waters.

TEXAS BREEZE

The lives of diplomats are regulated by protocol, from picking up a salad fork to making a formal call at the White House. So they were astounded when a member of Congress barged into a dozen embassies last week and asked to talk with the boss.

The Congressman was Maury Maverick of Texas, who knows little of protocol and cares less. The fact that it is definitely "anti-protocolaire" for a Congressman to transact business directly with a foreign diplomat didn't bother him in the least.

Maverick wanted to promote his bill for improving relations with Latin America, and he thought a little support from the Latin diplomats might help the cause.

The diplomats were delighted with him—after they caught their breath. They are accustomed to deal only with officials of the State Department.

Is Fish A Brain Food?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
Once a week in this column will be printed a discussion of a medical superstition. Readers are invited to contribute.

THAT FISH is a brain food.

It may seem silly to lay any stress on this particular superstition, but it has been estimated that 59 per cent of the general population and 32 per cent of school teachers believe that eating fish improves the brain. These figures were obtained through a questionnaire sent out by Dr. A. O. Bowden, president of the New Mexico State Teachers' college, and distributed among parents and teachers of elementary school pupils in cities in 14 states scattered from New Hampshire to California.

Unlike a great many medical superstitions, we are able to trace this one to its source. It is of comparatively recent origin, and is an illustration of Pope's adage that "A little knowledge is a dangerous thing."

During the nineteenth century biological chemistry made great strides and people were able to analyze the chemical structure not only of organs, but of food substances. It was found that the brain contained a considerable amount of phosphorus. Of course, it contains other substances, too, but it is very high in phosphorus.

The eminent German philosophical writer, Buchner, was led to make an epigram as a result of these researches, which was "Without phosphorus there is no thought."

At about the same time, research into the structure of fish flesh resulted in the finding that fish were particularly rich in phosphorus. This was announced by the French chemist, Dumas, a teacher of the great Pasteur. With this knowledge at hand and mind-ful of Buchner's epigram, Louis Agassiz, professor of natural history at Harvard, argued that the eating of fish would be good for the brain.

Of course, the brain is developed by any kind of food and will pick up what phosphorus it needs from practically any diet. During the time that the brain grows the most rapidly, that is up to the age of six years, the individual lives very largely on milk and certainly has very little fish in the diet.

It would be just as sensible to say that fish is a good food to keep you awake because fish never sleep. As a matter of fact, they probably do sleep, but their sleep is the most primitive form among vertebrates. It simply consists in being perfectly still. They do not close their eyes because they can't and unlike human beings' sleep, their senses are probably alert. But complete loss of motion in a fish is considered by psychologists to be a form of sleep.

FIESTA

BY OREN ARNOLD
RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Bill Baron, a footloose Texan, has just been rescued from a band of Yaqui Indians, holding him for ransom, through a bold move on the part of Ellen Dale, Hollywood screen star. Ellen and Bill had been staying at the wealthy Montoya ranch across the Mexican border where they found themselves after a lucky parachute jump from Baron's plane during a storm. Ellen, enchanted by the atmosphere of old Mexico, finds herself growing much interested in Bill. Also rescued with Bill was Panola Montoya, the ranch owner's daughter whose invitation to ride with her led to their capture by the Yaqui. As they return to the ranch, Bill and Ellen find Don Jito, their host, and his son, Felix, with a large following of Mexican in hot pursuit of the Yaqui. Ellen begs them to desert. Bill drives Ellen to Nogales after they say goodbye to the Montoyas, both promising to return later for a fiesta.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 15

ELLEN AND BILL parted when they had crossed the international line and were in Nogales, Ariz. They had some difficulty explaining their situation to the United States border patrol, but the immigration officers soon recognized Ellen Dale of the movies, and when Bill had made private talk with the patrol inspector, he was cleared.

"I'll find out about train and plane schedules," Bill told Ellen, "and call you at the hotel. I have some telephoning to do, myself."

"I shouldn't wonder, Bill. We've been gone forever. Your people will be sick from worry."

"And won't yours?" He smiled down at her.

"No. I have no—people. Some distant relatives, but—"

Instantly he was contrite. "I'm sorry, Ellen! I knew about that. But I mean, won't your friends be worrying? The people in California?"

"I shall telephone them at once."

She put in a call for Sid Bromberg in Hollywood from her hotel room, but could only get the producer's private secretary. Sid was out of his office for an hour.

Ellen dismissed her maid—the hotel had sent her an efficient servant dressed in Mexican costume—and lay back on her bed to relax. It was luxury to rest in the United States again, to feel at ease and think back on the past week's excitement.

The adventures scarcely seemed real now. How unpredictable the future is, she thought! A week ago, all of her life seemed cut out for her. She would fly to Hollywood, make pictures for as long as her popularity lasted, then retire somewhere. She was a city girl, grooved in city business and social routine. And then to be thrust into an adventure stranger than any she had portrayed on the screen! And most exciting of all was the fact that the past week had done something inside her. All of the handsome, polished men of the moving picture capital had not stirred her, but one big drawing Texan, whom she didn't really know a thing about, had completely upset her reasoning.

"He said he did not love me, he said it coming down that awful trail!" Ellen whispered to herself on the bed, staring at the ceiling.

She knew he was joking with her. Or was he?

When things of the heart are affected, one's discernment is never very dependable. Emotions get in the way of logic, and the slightest things can have profound import.

Panola Montoya had kissed him, too. Panola was—well, pretty, even if she was also a trifle too obvious, too sexy or something, Ellen knew. Men are blind sometimes. Panola's mouth, Panola's dark eyes and black hair, Panola's—phooey, Panola was nothing but a flirt!

Ellen succeeded in making herself quite miserable during that half hour, and the reverie was interrupted by a telephone call, long distance. It was from Sid Bromberg.

"Hello, baby!" he shouted it. "Where on earth have you been? We expected you a week ago."

"I was delayed. But I'm safe now, in Nogales."

"Safe? Have you been in danger? Tell me!"

Ellen realized they hadn't known a thing about her exploit. But somehow she didn't want to tell Sid about it.

"I mean I am feeling fine. I have been resting. I was on a ranch in Mexico."

"Great goodness, baby, don't run off like that! Papa's coming after you right now. I'll order the plane. I'll leave for Nogales at 6 p. m."

"Never mind, I can get home."

"Not without me, baby! I'm coming. I'm going to marry you, then bring you home. I been telling you all along. I'm coming."

"Aw, blah, Sid Bromberg!" She hung up in her ear, clicking spitefully.

Bromberg was a good picture man. He could whip a cast into doing the impossible, often taking the director's job himself. But he was too fat and self-assured to command much of her admiration otherwise. Evidently he thought himself in love with Ellen. He often said he was, sometimes embarrassed her by telling it to the world.

Ellen wished she had parents, a family, anyone close now. But Hollywood was her home, her life, all that she knew except the New York 10-cent store where she had worked so long. Sid Bromberg seemed to be personally Hollywood and her life there; money, and front, and the high-heeled swingtime existence which she had once thought so grand. She supposed she belonged in it, was an integral part. She sighed, though, at the very thought of it now.

She had four more long distance calls in 15 minutes, and within an hour two telegrams came. She refused the calls, accepted the telegrams. One was not from Sid; it was from a competitive producer wanting to hire her if she was free. The radio speaker in her hotel room presently announced, through a national chain hook-up, that "the lovely Ellen Dale, star of 'Swingtime Sweetheart' and other currently popular cinema releases, has just returned to the U. S. A. after a brief vacation on a hacienda in old Mexico, where she was the reigning senorita at several elaborate social functions staged in her honor, and where it is rumored she became engaged to a young ranchero who is intimate with the president of Mexico himself."

Ellen groaned a trifle; Sid's publicity staff had been working fast. She clicked off the radio, went into her bathroom and steamed for 10 minutes under a shower. There she had a sudden shocking realization; this was the first bath she had had since leaving San Antonio! But then, she had hardly been living normally.

She did a lot of thinking while she dressed. She had had to order fresh clothing from a Nogales store, and some of it did not fit her any too well. But when she was done, she was satisfied. Ellen had never been too clothes-conscious; girls who are genuinely pretty, who have inherent beauty of face and form, seldom are.

She gave a lot of thought to Hollywood during that half hour. To Bromberg, and the studio, and the apartment where she lived, and the dream home she had envisioned.

Her dream home! She had discussed building one in Arizona, with Bill; and had been interrupted by a strange adventure. California had people, and gaiety, and riches, and rushing madness day in and day out if you were caught in its social maelstrom. The ranch people were isolated from many conveniences and from towns, but they had the incomparable lift of scenic grandeur—the outdoors of which poets sing. "No other living is like this," Bill had said to her. Nevertheless, she was an urban girl, Manhattan reared and projected to fame via Hollywood. She was very confused, and still trying to think her way clear when a knock came at her door.

The hotel boy extended a small package and hastened away; someone else had tipped him, obviously.

"That Sid!" Ellen muttered, opening the parcel with scant interest. It would be expensive perfume, or a flashy, costly gold ring.

It was jewelry; but it wasn't flashy and it wasn't costly and it wasn't from Sid Bromberg. "O-o-o-oh!" breathed Ellen, admiring. She lifted a silver bracelet, hand-hammered, with many Indian designs; a three-pronged bracelet edged in silver raindrop balls, topped with three of the most perfectly matched spider-web turquoise settings she had ever seen, an exquisite bit of Navajo Indian craftsmanship.

"Could you wear it to dinner with me?" said a note with it.

Ellen Dale's heart leaped. She had never seen that handwriting before, and it was not signed, but she knew whose it was. She clasped the bracelet to her breast for a second like an ecstatic girl, then ran to her telephone. When the long distance connection was through, she did practically all the talking.

"Sid? Don't bother to come for me. No, I tell you, do not come, I won't wait for you, I won't be here. I won't marry you, Sid. I never said I would. I am going to marry somebody else!"

She clicked her receiver and turned away humming.

Poems That Live

LOVE IN THE WINDS

When I am standing on a mountain crest,
Or hold the tiller in the dashing spray,
My love of you leaps foaming in my breast,
Shouts with the winds and sweeps to their foray;
My heart bounds with the horses of the sea,

ONE BIG RACE

"I believe that, wherever possible, school teachers should have the same nationality or racial background as the children they teach," says a school official in a midwestern metropolis.

Thus in a Polish neighborhood he would have teachers of Polish descent, in an Italian district Italian teachers, in a Jewish district Jewish teachers, and so on. A teacher from the same racial group will understand the children better, he explains, and can be more of an inspiration to them. It is an incentive for the boys and girls when they see how successful a person with the same start in life as theirs can become.

There is something in that view; but it is best on the whole, and in the long run, to have teachers and pupils racially alike? Many will doubt it.

Nowadays there is too much racial feeling in the world. Isn't it better for a while to forget race in the educational process of making Americans, and to remember that people are people, all members of one big group—the Human Race?

Doesn't the "melting pot" work better when teachers and pupils are of different origin, all giving and receiving and learning to get along with each other?

SIZE TO ORDER

IF we want to be a race of physical giants, all right. Maybe experiments that Dr. Herbert M. Evans, biologist in the University of California, has been conducting for many years, will make it possible. Dr. Evans has got to the point where he can add a pound to the weight of a rat by the simple process of putting into the rat's food one-twentieth of a grain of a gland extract. By the same procedure he has made an undersized 15-year-old boy grow 8½ inches in 21 months.

The gland is the pituitary, a pear-shaped thing at the base of the brain, about the size of a medium-sized acorn. It seems to be the most powerful gland in the body. It might be called many glands in one, for it serves as a sort of powerhouse controlling in various ways about a dozen physical organs and functions, by means of the hormones or chemical substances that it pours into the blood stream. Dr. Evans extracts his hormones from the pituitary glands of oxen. Apparently any animal would do.

This quest seems, to many scientists, to offer the most promise of anything yet discovered, for regulating man's physical growth and development. It might even result in improvement of the human brain, directly or through the improved functioning of other organs.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

IF, AS INDICATED, the Roosevelt administration resumes silver purchases from Mexico, it may head off a Fascist state at the very border of the United States. Mexico depends on oil and silver for her ready cash. Without ready cash, the Cardenas regime, the most democratic in Latin America, might fall before a Fascist dictatorship. The present uprising of General Cedillo may not yet be the real test. General unrest might come not from such an isolated political revolt as from general economic pressure.

Mexico is having difficulty selling its oil, since it expropriated properties of foreign oil companies for refusing to obey a court labor decree. (The oil, incidentally, always has belonged to the nation; it could only give concessions for the production of it to private corporations.) Now the large corporations have tried to block the sale of Mexican oil.

On the other hand, British oil companies had invested millions for years developing Mexican oil properties and markets, only to have their properties expropriated at the moment they began to show a profit.

An interesting picture of Mexico is painted by D. Graham Hutton, associate editor of the London Economist, writing in the June issue of Pacific Affairs, quarterly journal of the Institute of Pacific Relations.

A memorandum by the Institute summarizes Mr. Hutton's conclusions in this manner: Although Mexican foreign policy has favored Soviet Russia, China, Ethiopia and the Spanish republic, this carries no guarantee that Mexico is headed for a Socialist state in the Soviet sense, nor does it mean that Mexico will take a stand with other powers in a combined democratic stand against Fascist-minded aggressors or politicians. Fear of Fascist penetration is balanced against suspicion of democratic capitalist enterprises in Mexico. Mr. Hutton observes, moreover, that domestic discontent is steadily pushing Mexico into the arena of the world's great powers.

The Cardenas regime, according to Mr. Hutton, has sought to sit on the fence between an out-and-out proletarian dictatorship and the familiar system of bourgeois government in the hands of large landowners, big business and their tools in the armed forces and civil service. Internally, he indicates, Mexico has not yet solved the political problems caused by the integration of domestic politics thirty years ago under the dictatorship of Porfirio Diaz. Application by Cardenas of parts of the Six-Year Plan aimed at improving the well-being of the Indian masses making up more than half of the population, has subordinated the Catholic church to the state and forced redistribution of foreign and bourgeois-owned haciendas, for which no compensation has been paid, to small village communities.

As a result of present policies of agrarian reform and confiscation of foreign enterprises, the author shows that "the Cardenas regime is assailed by economic problems due to overacceleration of necessary reforms, often in questionable directions."

The great powers of the world are all bound, Mr. Hutton observes, to adopt strong attitudes towards the problems raised by Mexican acts. Forced by events, Anglo-American interests have been cemented in Mexico, and their national policy is based on a negative process of reacting to positive Mexican actions.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

DUCE WORKS SQUEEZE PLAY

WASHINGTON — One good gauge of how serious the Germans are about getting into Czechoslovakia is that the Italians have moved troops to the border of Tunis in North Africa to work a squeeze play on France.

This is extremely significant.

Inhabited by more Italians than Frenchmen, Tunis long has been a sore spot in French-Italian relations, especially in recent months when Mussolini has made a specialty of stirring up the Moslem races against the French and British.

To concentrate Italian troops near the Tunisian border, therefore means tying up the French at their own back door. This, in turn, makes it more difficult for them to move at their front door—which is Czechoslovakia.

This squeeze play was undoubtedly worked out by Hitler and Mussolini during their recent Roman love-feast. It indicates how wide of the mark the British shot in thinking they could drive a wedge between them. (Also how wide of the mark Roosevelt shot in blessing the Anglo-Italian agreement.)

SPANISH AIRDROMES

French hands also are tied at their side door by the fact that Italy and Germany have established a row of underground airdromes in Spain just south of the French border. Located 300 feet underground, thereby impervious to bombing, these airdromes fly the Italian and German flags, and according to military observers, Spaniards are not allowed to come near.

In case France should oppose Germany in Czechoslovakia, planes from these airdromes could be over important French cities in thirty minutes.

NOTE—This is not the first time Mussolini has worked an international squeeze play. Last Summer when the British were about to send ships from the Mediterranean to the China coast in order to tone down Japanese aggression, Il Duce started his submarine piracy campaign, thus forcing British ships to remain in Mediterranean waters.

TEXAS BREEZE

The lives of diplomats are regulated by protocol, from picking up a salad fork to making a formal call at the White House. So they were astounded when a member of Congress barged into a dozen embassies last week and asked to talk with the boss.

The Congressman was Maury Maverick of Texas, who knows little of protocol and cares less. The fact that it is definitely "anti-protocolaire" for a Congressman to transact business directly with a foreign diplomat didn't bother him in the least.

Maverick wanted to promote his bill for improving relations with Latin America, and he thought a little support from the Latin diplomats might help the cause.

The diplomats were delighted with him—after they caught their breath. They are accustomed to deal only with officials of the State Department.

Is Fish A Brain Food?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
Once a week in this column will be printed a discussion of a medical superstition. Readers are invited to contribute.

THAT FISH is a brain food.

It may seem silly to lay any stress on this particular superstition, but it has been estimated that 59 per cent of the general population and 32 per cent of school teachers believe that eating fish improves the brain. These figures were obtained through a questionnaire sent out by Dr. A. O. Bowden, president of the New Mexico State Teachers' college, and distributed among parents and teachers of elementary school pupils in cities in 14 states scattered from New Hampshire to California.

Unlike a great many medical superstitions, we are able to trace

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

this one to its source. It is of comparatively recent origin, and is an illustration of Pope's adage that "A little knowledge is a dangerous thing."

During the nineteenth century biological chemistry made great strides and people were able to analyze the chemical structure not only of organs, but of food substances. It was found that the brain contained a considerable amount of phosphorus. Of course, it contains other substances, too, but it is very high in phosphorus. The eminent German philosophical writer, Buchner, was led to make an epigram as a result of these researches, which was "Without phosphorus there is no thought."

Fish Rich in Phosphorus

At about the same time, research into the structure of fish flesh resulted in the finding that fish were particularly rich in phosphorus. This was announced by the French chemist, Dumas, a teacher of the great Pasteur. With this knowledge at hand and mind-ford of Buchner's epigram, Louis Agassiz, professor of natural history at Harvard, argued that the eating of fish would be good for the brain.

Of course, the brain is developed by any kind of food and will pick up what phosphorus it needs from practically any diet. During the time that the brain grows the most rapidly, that is up to the age of six years, the individual lives very largely on milk and certainly has very little fish in the diet. It would be just as sensible to say that fish is a good food to keep you awake because fish never sleep. As a matter of fact, they probably do sleep, but their sleep is the most primitive form among vertebrates. It simply consists in being perfectly still. They do not close their eyes because they can't and unlike human beings' sleep, their senses are probably alert. But complete loss of motion in a fish is considered by psychologists to be a form of sleep.

FIESTA

BY OREN ARNOLD

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Bill Baron, a footloose Texan, has just been rescued from a band of Yaqui Indians, holding him for ransom, through a bold move on the part of Ellen Dale, Hollywood screen star. Ellen and Bill had been staying at the wealthy Montoya ranch across the Mexican border where they found themselves a lucky parachute jump from Baron's plane during a storm. Ellen, enchanted by the atmosphere of old Mexico, finds herself growing much interested in Bill. Also reached with Bill was Panola Montoya, the ranch owner's daughter whose invitation to ride with her led to their capture by the Yaqui. As they return to the ranch, Bill and Ellen and Don Julio, their host, and his son, Felix, with a large following of Mexicans, in hot pursuit of the Yaqui. Ellen begs them to desert. Bill drives Ellen to Nogales after they say goodbye to the Montoyas, both promising to return later for a fiesta.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 15

ELLEN AND BILL parted when they had crossed the international line and were in Nogales, Ariz. They had some difficulty explaining their situation to the United States border patrol, but the immigration officers soon recognized Ellen Dale of the movies, and when Bill had made private talk with the patrol inspector, he was cleared.

"I'll find out about train and plane schedules," Bill told Ellen, "and call you at the hotel. I have some telephoning to do, myself."

"I shouldn't wonder, Bill. We've been sick for a week. Your people will be sick from worry."

"And won't yours?" He smiled down at her.

"No. I have no people. Some distant relatives, but—"

Instantly he was contrite. "I'm sorry, Ellen! I knew about that. But I mean, won't your friends be worrying?" The people in California?

"I shall telephone them at once."

She put in a call for Sid Bromberg in Hollywood from her hotel room, but could only get the producer's private secretary. Sid was out of his office for an hour.

Ellen dismissed her maid—the hotel had sent her an efficient servant dressed in Mexican costume—and lay back on her bed to relax. It was luxury to rest in the United States again, to feel at ease and think back on the past week's excitement.

The adventures scarcely seemed real now. How unpredictable the future is, she thought! A week ago, all of her life seemed cut out for her. She would fly to Hollywood, make pictures for as long as her popularity lasted, then retire somewhere. She was a city girl, grooved in city business and social routine. And then to be dumped out of an airplane by a thunderstorm—into an adventure stranger than any she had portrayed on the screen! And most exciting of all was the fact that the past week had done something inside her. All of the handsome polished men of the moving picture capital had not stirred her, but one big drawing Texan, whom she didn't really know a thing about, had completely upset her reasoning.

"He said he did not love me, he said it coming down that awful trail!" Ellen whispered to herself on the bed, staring at the ceiling.

She knew he was joking with her. Or was he?

When things of the heart are affected, one's discernment is never very dependable. Emotions get in the way of logic, and the slightest things can have profound import.

Panola Montoya had kissed him, too. Panola was—well, pretty, even if she was also a trifle too obvious, too sexy or something. Ellen knew. Men are blind sometimes. Panola's mouth, Panola's dark eyes and black hair, Panola's—phooey, Panola was nothing but a flirt!

Ellen succeeded in making herself quite miserable during that half hour, and the reverie was interrupted by a telephone call, long distance. It was from Sid Bromberg.

"Hello, baby!" he shouted it. "Where on earth have you been? We expected you a week ago."

"I was delayed. But I'm safe now, in Nogales."

"Safe? Have you been in danger? Tell me!"

Ellen realized they hadn't known a thing about her exploit. But somehow she didn't want to tell Sid about it.

"I mean I am feeling fine. I have been resting. I was on a ranch in Mexico."

"Great goodness, baby, don't run off like that! Papa's coming after you right now. I'll order the plane. I'll leave for Nogales at 6 p. m."

"Never mind, I can get home."

"Not without me, baby! I'm coming. I'm going to marry you, then bring you home. I been telling you all along. I'm coming."

"Aw, blah, Sid Bromberg!" She hung up in her ear, clicking spitefully.

Bromberg was a good picture man. He could whip a cast into doing the impossible, often taking the director's job himself. But he was too fat and self-assured to command much of her admiration otherwise. Evidently he thought himself in love with Ellen. He often said he was, sometimes embarrassed her by telling it to the world.

Ellen wished she had parents, a family, anyone close now. But Hollywood was her home, her life, all that she knew except the New York 10-cent store where she had worked so long. Sid Bromberg seemed to personify Hollywood and her life there: money, and front, and the high-ho-de-no swingtime existence which she had once thought so grand. She supposed she belonged in it, was an integral part. She sighed, though, at the very thought of it now.

She had four more long distance calls in 15 minutes, and within an hour two telegrams came. She refused the calls, accepted the telegrams. One was not from Sid; it was from a competitive producer wanting to hire her if she was free. The radio speaker in her hotel room presently announced, through a national chain hook-up, that the lovely Ellen Dale, star of "Swingtime Sweetheart" and other currently popular cinema releases, has just returned to the U. S. A. after a brief vacation on a hacienda in old Mexico, where she was the reigning senorita and several elaborate social functions staged in her honor, and where it is rumored she became engaged to a young ranchero who is intimate with the president of Mexico himself."

Ellen groaned a trifle; Sid's publicity staff had been working fast. She clicked off the radio, went into her bathroom and steamed for 10 minutes under a shower. There she had a sudden shocking realization; this was the first bath she had had since leaving San Antonio! But then, she had hardly been living normally.

She did a lot of thinking while she dressed. She had had to order fresh clothing from a Nogales store, and some of it did not fit her any too well. But when she was done, she was satisfied. Ellen had never been too cloth-conscious; girls who are genuinely pretty, who have inherent beauty of face and form, seldom are.

She gave a lot of thought to Hollywood during that half hour. To Bromberg, and the studio, and the apartment where she lived, and the dream home she had envisioned.

Her dream home! She had discussed building one in Arizona, with Bill; and had been interrupted by a strange adventure. California had people, and gaiety, and riches, and rushing madness day in and day out if you were caught in its social maelstrom. The ranch people were isolated from many conveniences and from towns, but they had the incomparable peace of scenic grandeur, the outdoors of which poets sang. "No other living is like this," Bill had said to her. Nevertheless, she was an urban girl, Manhattan reared and projected to fame via Hollywood. She was very confused, and still trying to think her way clear when a knock came at her door.

The hotel boy extended a small package and hastened away; someone else had tipped him, obviously.

"That Sid!" Ellen muttered, opening the parcel with scant interest. It would be expensive perfume, or a flashy, costly gold ring.

It was jewelry; but it wasn't flashy and it wasn't costly and it wasn't from Sid Bromberg. "O-o-o-oh!" breathed Ellen, admiring. She lifted a silver bracelet, hand hammered, with many Indian designs; a three-pronged bracelet edged in silver raindrop balls, topped with three of the most perfectly matched spider-web turquoise settings she had ever seen, an exquisite bit of Navajo Indian craftsmanship.

"Could you wear it to dinner with me?" said a note with it.

Ellen Dale's heart leaped. She had never seen that handwrought before, and it was not signed, but she knew whose it was. She clasped the bracelet to her breast for a second like an ecstatic girl, then ran to her telephone. When the long distance connection was through, she did practically all the talking.

"Sid? Don't bother to come for me. No, I tell you, do not come. I won't wait for you, I won't be here. I won't marry you, Sid. I never said I would. I am going to marry somebody else!"

She clicked her receiver and turned away humming.

FEUD KEEPS ACE HURLER OUT OF DODGER LINEUP

COLUMBUS, May 25—(UP)—Whitlow Wyatt, fast ball star of the Milwaukee Brewers, today took his place among the American Association's leading pitchers and only a baseball feud prevented him from being back in the major leagues.

Wyatt was with the Cleveland Indians last season, but saw only irregular service in relief roles. With an abundance of mound talent, the Indians shipped him back to Milwaukee this season.

Wyatt, although pitching for a second division club, has been one of the league's outstanding hurlers and yesterday he hung up his fifth victory as the Brewers defeated Minneapolis 4 to 2. Wyatt has been credited with one-half of the games Milwaukee has won.

After Wyatt was off to a great start the Brooklyn Dodgers sought to buy him, but Milwaukee officials refused to consider any offer made by General Manager Larry McPhail because they alleged the Dodger chieftain had broken a promise by not sending them Outfielder Jack Winsett when he was cut adrift.

So because of the "front office" feud Wyatt, temporarily at least, stays in the minors.

In other Association games yesterday, Kansas City went back into the lead by defeating St. Paul 6 to 5; Columbus blanked Louisville 3 to 0; and Indianapolis and Toledo split a double-header. The Indians won the opener 6 to 0 and dropped the nightcap 9 to 5.

HORSE CONTEST OFF; SEABISCUIT NOT IN SHAPE

NEW YORK, May 25—(UP)—There may never be an answer to the question: which is the better horse—Seabiscuit or War Admiral? For the anticipated "dream race," which was to have provided that answer, was just a memory today. The Biscuit and the Admiral prepared to go their separate ways, perhaps never again to come as close to a meeting on the track as they were less than 24 hours ago.

The $100,000, mile and a quarter race between them, scheduled for Monday at Belmont Park, was cancelled yesterday afternoon because Seabiscuit's owner, Charles S. Howard, reported that his five-year-old horse was suffering from bad knees which were puffy and sore. He said the Biscuit might risk permanent injury if he attempted to start on Monday.

AVERILL DRIVES SIX RUNS OVER; INDIANS WIN 9-5

CLEVELAND, May 25—(UP)—A player's value to his club can be accurately judged by the runs which he bats in, and for that reason Earl Averill, veteran outfielder, today was given major credit for the hold the Cleveland Indians have on first division.

The Tribe defeated the world champion New York Yankees 9 to 5 here yesterday to sweep the abbreviated two game series and it was Averill who led the way.

Averill pounded out a home run in the third inning with two men on base and in the fourth he tripled with the bases loaded. The two hits drove in six of the Indians runs.

In the last six games Averill has driven in a total of 19 runs.

Petillo, Others In Last Speedway Qualifying Test

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 25—(UP)—Kelly Petillo, surprise winner of the 1935 classic, led a band of 14 racing cars over the 25 mile qualifying course today in his last attempt to gain one of the 19 remaining positions in the annual 500 mile speed test Memorial Day.

Twice before, Petillo's car, dogged by mechanical trouble, failed to finish the 25 mile time sprint. Each driver has only three trials. "Wild" Bill Cummings, 1936 speedway champion, was scheduled to make his first appearance today after weeks of motor trouble. Jimmy Snyder, also making his last attempt, Bill Devore, Al Miller, Shorty Cantlon, Al Putnam, Frank Beeder, Lou Tomei, George Connor, Louis Webb, Chuck Gardner and Doc Williams followed Petillo.

Fortune told drivers, including three-time winner Lou Meyer, already have qualified.

Despite his early failures, Petillo was the most closely watched pilot on the track. His

ROSS AND HENRY TO DRAW MAJOR GOTHAM CROWD

NEW YORK, May 25—(UP)—The fight between Barney Ross and Henry Armstrong in Madison Square Garden bowl tomorrow night would be the richest welter-weight championship match in history if gate receipts are near the $250,000 mark predicted by Promoter Mike Jacobs.

"With any kind of break in the weather, the bout should draw at least 50,000 spectators," Jacobs said today. "We had more than $85,000 in advance ticket sales last night, and the demand probably will be heavier today."

Anything over the $200,000 mark will better the top set by Ross and Jimmy McLarin in their first 1934 battle. They pulled $194,329 in May of that year, $137,902 in September, and $140,480 in their last battle in 1935. Ross' title defense against Cefernio Garcia at the Polo grounds here last September was a $265,000 affair, but it was on the carnival of champions card, that included Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers and Featherweight Titleholder Sixto Escobar.

Ross, the 28-year-old defending champion from Chicago, was an 8-5 favorite to make his third successful title defense against Armstrong. Since winning the title back from McLarin in May 1935, he has put his crown on the line but twice, vanquishing Izzy Jannazzo and 1936 and Garcia in 1937.

RED PITCHERS GO SKY HIGH, LEAD IS LOST

Vander Meer Weakens, Relief Tossers Hand Contest To Boston Bees

BOSTON, Mass., May 25—(UP)—While the Cincinnati Reds may be the surprise package of the current National League race, baseball experts today agreed that the charges of Manager Bill McKechnie can not be termed a "good" ball club until they start winning the close games.

The Reds have played 32 games thus far this season and eight of those have been decided by the margin of one run. The Redlegs have grabbed but one of the contests decided by a single run.

Cincinnati lost its seventh game of the season by one run here yesterday when it handed the Boston Bees a 10 to 9 decision. The loss cost the Reds their third place position.

One of the reasons the Reds have made trouble this season has been their pitching, but yesterday they received hurling of the very sourest brand.

Vander Near Hot, Cold
Johnny Vander Meer, the rookie southpaw who defeated the league leading New York Giants in his last out, was Manager McKechnie's starting pitcher. Vander Meer limited the Bees to two hits, both of them by Catcher Ray Mueller, for five innings and then blew sky high.

Vander Meer was driven from the box in the sixth when the Bees scored four runs, but even then Cincinnati held what looked to be a safe 9 to 5 lead. However, the relief hurling was poorer than that dished out by Vander Meer. Ray Davis, Al Hollingsworth and Joe Cascarella all took turns and were hammered by the Bees. Hollingsworth was charged with the loss.

Cincinnati scored four times in the first inning and added five runs in the sixth to apparently assure the victory. Then came the collapse of the Redleg pitchers and the "sure" triumph was tossed into the loss column.

Boston used five pitchers in its winning effort with Bill Weil receiving credit for the triumph.

Cincinnati's wasted 13 hit attack was paced by Lonnie Frey, Frank McCormick and Ernie Lombardi, each of whom Jimmy Snyder, also making his last attempt, Bill Devore, Al Miller, Shorty Cantlon, Al Putnam, Frank Beeder, Lou Tomei, George Connor, Louis Webb, Chuck Gardiner and Doc Williams followed Petillo.

Fourteen other drivers, including three-time winner Lou Meyer, already have qualified. Despite his early failures, Petillo was the most closely watched pilot on the track. His car, one of the fastest on hand, reportedly has made 150 miles an hour on a long straightaway before he brought it to the speedway. He had an average of 126.361 before tire trouble halted his first time trial and reached 130.346 before his motor failed on the second.

Williams entered the first riding mechanic under the newly adopted international racing rules permitting a driver to ride alone or with a mechanic. His rider will be Ray Short of Indianapolis, a brother-in-law.

ROSS AND HENRY TO DRAW MAJOR GOTHAM CROWD

NEW YORK, May 25—(UP)—The fight between Barney Ross and Henry Armstrong in Madison Square Garden bowl tomorrow night would be the richest welterweight championship match in history if gate receipts are near the $250,000 mark predicted by Promoter Mike Jacobs.

"With any kind of break in the weather, the bout should draw at least 50,000 spectators," Jacobs said today. "We had more than $85,000 in advance ticket sales last night, and the demand probably will be heavier today."

Anything over the $200,000 mark will better the top set by Ross and Jimmy McLarin in their first 1934 battle. They pulled $194,329 in May of that year, $137,902 in September, and $140,480 in their last battle in 1935. Ross' title defense against Ceferi Garcia at the Polo grounds here last September was a $265,000 affair, but it was on the carnival of champions card, that included Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers and Featherweight Titleholder Sixto Escobar.

Ross, the 28-year-old defending champion from Chicago, was an 8-5 favorite to make his third successful title defense against Armstrong. Since winning the title back from McLarin in May 1935, he has put his crown on the line but twice, vanquishing Izzy Janazzo and 1936 and Garcia in 1937.

RED PITCHERS GO SKY HIGH, LEAD IS LOST

Vander Meer Weakens, Relief Tossers Hand Contest To Boston Bees

BOSTON, Mass., May 25—(UP)—While the Cincinnati Reds may be the surprise package of the current National League race, baseball experts today agreed that the charges of Manager Bill McKeechne can not be termed a "good" ball club until they start winning the close games.

The Reds have played 32 games thus far this season and eight of those have been decided by the margin of one run. The Redlegs have grabbed but one of the contests decided by a single run.

Cincinnati lost its seventh game of the season by one run here yesterday when it handed the Boston Bees a 10 to 9 decision. The loss cost the Reds their third place position.

One of the reasons the Reds have made trouble this season has been their pitching, but yesterday they received hurling of the very sourest brand.

Vander Meer Near Hot, Cold Johnny Vander Meer, the rookie southpaw who defeated the league leading New York Giants in his last out, was Manager McKeechne's starting pitcher. Vander Meer limited the Bees to two hits, both of them by Catcher Ray Mueller, for five innings and then blew sky high.

Vander Meer was driven from the box in the sixth when the Bees scored four runs, but even then Cincinnati held what looked to be a safe 9 to 5 lead. However, the relief hurling was poorer than that dished out by Vander Meer. Ray Davis, Al Hollingsworth and Joe Casarella all took turns and were hammered by the Bees. Hollingsworth was charged with the loss.

Cincinnati scored four times in the first inning and added five runs in the sixth to apparently assure the victory. Then came the collapse of the Redleg pitchers and the "sure" triumph was tossed into the loss column.

Boston used five pitchers in its winning effort with Bill Weir receiving credit for the triumph. Cincinnati's wasted 13 hit attack was paced by Lonnie Frey, Frank McCormick and Ernie Lombardi, each of whom collected three safeties.

Thirty-three players saw action in the wild contest. The Bees used 18 and the Reds 16. The clubs were to meet today with Paul Derringer and Danny MacFayden as the opposing pitchers.

YESTERDAY'S HERO—Lefty Grove, Red Sox venerable southpaw, who pitched Boston into second place with his eighth straight triumph, a 5-4 victory over Detroit.

over the 1-No Trump, South called 2-Spades as before, and this passed to East. He didn't like to try 3-Hearts over it, as that would have forced his partner to the four range in order to show diamond preference. So he rebid diamonds at three, and was set three just like the others.

The one forward looking player called 2-Hearts over the 1-No Trump, so that he could safely show his other suit later. South bid 2-Spades. When East called 3-Diamonds over that, West shifted to 3-Hearts. This also was set, but only by one trick, as at least the side had got into the right suit.

No damage has been done and we are sure of our Bill Abbott's roasting ears by July 4. Frank Grice's watermelons will come along some later.

Met my old friend Conductor Wintz Tuesday down at Main street crossing directing traffic, seeing that no one gets bumped off and be in the fault. He has run many a train up and down this N. & W. line between Portsmouth and Columbus. Mr. Wintz, besides being a conductor, is a good printer and we are yet strong in the notion of running that big print plant we told you about some time ago. . . . Delmer White, who underwent an operation at a Columbus hospital for hernia some several days ago, was returned home Tuesday. He is resting comfortably at his home on West Main street and will be going again soon and better than ever. . . . The local Fire Mutual according to secretary Jesse Baum, has had several livestock losses by lightning within the last few days. One horse each for Joseph McClure, Frank Teegardin, George Armstrong, a steer for E. W. Balton and two calves for Walter Knecht.

Ashville Corn Melons Oked

Asked a dozen or more Monday after the near all night rain, if the roasting ear and watermelon patches in the Walnut creek bottoms, had been destroyed by the water going out of banks. No one knew a thing and we had to know, so down to over the railroad bridge and on south we went until a clear view of these patches could be obtained. No damage has been done and we are sure of our Bill Abbott's roasting ears by July 4. Frank Grice's watermelons will come along some later.
